SHUNTEN
The king surrounded in legend
It is said that King Shunten's father was Minatogawa no Tametomo and his mother was the sister of Oato Aji. Shunten became Aji of Urasoe at a very young age. In the year 1187, Shunten assumed the throne with the help of his people.

EISO
The king said to be the Child of the Sun
The story goes that the lady of Castle Iso, wife of the head of household, had a dream after she was pregnant with the baby who would become King Eiso. In the year 1260, Eiso took the throne from Gihon.

SATTO
The king who founded a Nation Through Trade
In the year 1372, in response to an invitation from the Emperor of the Ming Dynasty, King Sato sent out an envoy. This established the first formal diplomatic ties between Ryukyu and China. Additionally, King Sato sent exchange students from Ryukyu to China.

Three Royal Kings
From the 13th to the 15th century, Urasoe, the capital of Okinawa previous to Shuri, prospered as a cultural center and trade hub of the Ryukyu Kingdom. "Three Royal Kings", Shunten, Eiso and Sato who reigned during this time established the foundation of the Ryukyu Kingdom.

10 Tomb of Tamagusuku Chokun 玉城朝薫の墓

Dance Magistrate Tamagusuku Chokun is said to have created "Kumiodori", which is a form of Ryukyu Theater that first appeared in the Satsuo Ceremony Banquet in 1719. It is believed that his grave was built between the late 17th century and the early 18th century. On the inside, the ceiling is supported by stone pillars, a relatively rare support structure.

11 National Theatre Okinawa 国立劇場おきなわ

Opened to the public in January of 2004, the goal of this place was to emphasize and preserve "Kumiodori" which is registered nationally as an intangible cultural asset. The structure was built by utilizing and drawing inspiration from special characteristics of Okinawan geography and history.

Okinawa's top three major night view points

Urasoe Daken Park's Observation Deck is one of the top three major night view points in Okinawa.

1 Urasoe Castle Site 浦添城跡

Urasoe Castle was the royal castle of Chuzan (the middle region of the Ryukyu Kingdom) before Shurijo Castle existed and it is said that the castle was built in the year 1260 by King Eiso. The focal point of the castle was the main temple, with its roof of Korean tile, while the fortress itself was surrounded by a great stone wall. Urasoe Castle eventually became the archetype for Shurijo Castle. The "Three Royal Kings", Shunten, Eiso and Satto reigned at Urasoe Castle for 220 years. Though the fortress was sieged 3 times in those years, the three kings used Urasoe Castle to establish a political and economic foundation in Ryukyu, and clear the way for a great era of international trade.

2 Urasoe Youdore 浦添ようどれ

To the north of the Castle site, underneath a cliff, there lies the imperial mausoleum. Dug into the shade of the cliff are two grave rooms. It is said that King Eiso's grave is on the right while King Shonei's grave is on the left. Additionally, the stone Zushi enshrined inside of the mausoleum is designated as Prefectural Cultural Property. In old Okinawan, "Youdore" means "evening calm". It is likely that this word refers to the graves, because it evokes a sense of things subsiding. After the Battle of Okinawa and the quarry work that took place after the war, Youdore was almost completely destroyed. However, due to restoration efforts, it has been returned to its original form.

3 Wakarijee ワカリジー

Also called "Hanarijee", Wakarijee is a massive rock that stands a short distance from the Eastern edge of Urasoe Hill. This behemoth of a rock can even be seen from southern and central areas of Okinawa, and it has become a landmark of Urasoe. At the base of Wakarijee lies a place of worship which is still frequented by pilgrims today.

4 The Toyama Cobblestone Road 当山の石畳道

This road was frequently used for every day travel purposes but in 1671, the road was outfitted to serve as a central thoroughfare. Located within the Toyama Cobblestone Road (which is also a part of the pilgrimage/homage to Futenna Shrine) is a part of the Makiminato River, flowing in an S-shaped valley that is 200m long and approximately 3m wide. Crossing the Toyama Bridge involved climbing hill after hill, and was even too dangerous to climb on horseback. Because of this danger in particular, the road was often called by the special name "Mma-Dukerashi" meaning, "Horse Toppler".

5 Iso Castle Site 伊祖城跡

In the hymn "Omoro", it is sung that Amamikyo, the founding God of the Ryukyu Kingdom is the one who created Iso Castle. It is said to have been the residence of King Eiso's descendants, Eiso being the legendary "Child of the Sun". The unworked quarry stone visible in the ruins gives off the old charm of this castle.

6 Kamiji カーミージー

Kamiji is a very large swelling of limestone located off the northernmost point in Minatogawa's Sakibaru. It goes its name, "Turtle Island", from its turtle-like appearance. A coral reef lagoon, also known as Inoh, stretches along Kamiji and is a great place to see fish and play during the day, and then watch the beautiful sunset in the evening.

8 The Ahacha Bridge 安波茶橋

The bridge straddles the upper stream of the Kowan River, located in the middle of "The Western Ocean Road to Nakagami". In 1597 during the reign of King Shonei, Ahacha Bridge was overhauled from Urasoe to Shuri. It was probably during this time that the bridge was outfitted with stone. On the side of the north bridge is the so-called "Red Plate". It is said that it got its name because, in the middle of a journey, the King stopped to drink water from this area with a red cup.
